CONGRESSMAN FISH

Rep. Fish Favors Public Impeachment Hearings

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

The House Watergate inquiry should "go public as soon as possible," Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. (R-25th Dist.) said today stating that the more publicity given the proceedings the better.

Speaking at a breakfast meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of Ulster County at the Gov. Clinton Hotel, Fish, who is a member of the House Judiciary Committee presently considering possible impeachment proceedings against President Nixon, said that while he finds fellow members of the committee approach their roles with individually different attitudes, he believes that "how we conduct ourselves is very important."

"Our actions must be acceptable to the American people... I hope Congress can respond so that the confidence of the American people can be restored," Fish advocated televising proceedings.

Asked about the views of his constituency regarding impeachment, Fish said he expects to have a tabulation of their response to a questionnaire dealing with the question in about two weeks. He said he expects a big response to the three questions he asked—whether to leave the President alone? Ask him to resign or impeach? The Congressman said he now wishes he had asked a fourth question—whether or not to reserve judgement until after the House Judiciary Committee inquiry is completed?

Fish said the work of the committee is "almost overwhelming" in view of the volume of information to be sifted through. "It takes a tremendous amount of concentration," he said, describing how committee members sit silently like school children listening for hours at a time, morning, afternoon and many evenings. They are not allowed to ask questions, he said.

Fish, who was introduced by Chamber President Richard B. Mathews, devoted most of his talk to major pieces of legislation awaiting Congressional action.

Calling for additional campaign finance reform, Fish told of legislation which he co-sponsored called the Clean Elections Act which combines public and private financing in what he feels is an equitable and workable manner.

It calls for a system of federal grants to match small individual contributions and complimentary tax credits to stimulate such contributions.

Fish said he feels that reform of campaign finance and spending laws can only lead to better government since it will go a long way toward eliminating the pressures on members of Congress as a result of being indebted to large contributors.

Action in the House on the issue has been much slower than in the Senate, Fish said, but activity is underway.

Relative to campaign spending Fish told the large audience that he is now preparing a statement of his personal finances which will be made available in the near future.

Regarding national health insurance proposals, Fish said he feels they will be put over this session because this is an election year.

He told of the Ways and Means Committee reporting out a bill that would phase out the percentage depletion allowance for most oil production by the end of 1976, impose a temporary excise tax on increases in crude oil prices and tighten taxation of oil companies' foreign earnings.

He said he hopes to see forward funding for school programs at least one year in advance.

Fish praised the recent creation of the Federal Energy Administration saying it directs the FEA administrator to keep the public informed of the nature, extent and possible duration of energy shortages, and to provide information on the impact of the shortages and steps taken to deal with them.

The administrator is also to report within a year of enactment on the nation's oil and gas reserves and annually on FEA's activities and estimates of the nation's future energy supplies.

FBI Labels Patricia Hearst 'Dangerous'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Patricia Hearst, the soft-spoken coed who screamed "let me go" as she was violently kidnapped 3½ months ago, was hunted today by hundreds of lawmen as an "armed and extremely dangerous" member of the terrorist group which abducted her.

With six of Miss Hearst's alleged captors dead after a series of weekend developments in which the case began to break open, the FBI led a blitz search in this city today for the remnants of the nearly decimated Symbionese Liberation Army, and for Miss Hearst.

The FBI said Sunday night it would charge Miss Hearst as the woman who pumped automatic rifle fire into a sporting goods store on Thursday, the incident that triggered the army of lawmen into action as they began to close in on the SLA.

The FBI said it believes Miss Hearst, who 106 days ago was pursuing her art studies and quietly planning a summer wedding, to be part of what is left of her captors.

"Apparently she has joined forces with the SLA," William A. Sullivan, assistant director of the Los Angeles FBI office, said of the 20-year-old newspaper heiress Sunday night. He added:

"She will be given the opportunity to surrender. If she opens fire on FBI agents or police, the fire will be returned."

Police said early today all units were seeking a young white woman and two black men "considered armed and dangerous and may be suspected SLA members" who tried to offer "several hundred dollars" to a landlady if she would give them a room Sunday night.

Police said when the landlady refused to rent the room, she was slashed at with a knife. Her clothing was cut but she was unharmed. Her assailants reportedly fled in a red and black sedan.

Named in a warrant charging federal firearms violations were Miss Hearst and William A. Sullivan, a husband and wife in their late 20s. The Harrises are white.

If there was any solid SLA connection with the two black men sought early today, police did not give it.

Six persons, including acknowledged SLA leader Cinque, are dead, victims of a Friday night shootout with an estimated 500 law officers that lasted more than an hour before their hideout house burned. When the charred remains of all six were finally identified Sunday afternoon, the dead included what was believed to be all the top leaders of the SLA, which now appears not to have numbered more than a dozen.

In tape recordings issued as the country's first political kidnapping unfolded, Miss Hearst pledged her allegiance to the SLA, renounced her family, ridiculed her fiancé and repeated the violent SLA goals of revolution on behalf of the people. But her family always said it believed the statements were coerced. Most authorities ap peared to believe that, until this weekend.

Formal complaints were to be filed late today against Miss Hearst and the Harrises, who Sullivan said he believed were still in Southern California. A youth who identified Miss Hearst for the FBI said she told him she raked a sporting goods store with rifle fire as she and the Harrises made their getaway after a bungled attempt to shoplift a pair of 9-cent socks.

Randolph A. Hearst, Patricia's father, was "taking it pretty badly" and was not expected to have any comment until later today, said a spokesman at the family home in Hillsborough, Calif.

Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner, had already endured tense waits while authorities determined if any of four dead women in a fire-gutted house was his daughter.

First there was a wait of 20 hours until the charred bodies of the first three women found in the rubble of the house after the Friday shoot out were identified. Then there was a wait of about three hours after a body of another white woman was found Sunday morning.

The dead included Donald David DeFreeze, 30, the SLA leader known as Cinque; Nancy Ling Perry, 26, the group's theoretician; and SLA members Patricia "Mizmoon" Soltysik, 24; Camilla Hall, 29; Angela Atwood, 25, and William Wolfe, 23.

The FBI's informant, Tom Dean Mathews, 18, said a woman he identified as Miss Hearst and two other persons—the Harrises—held him for more than 12 hours Friday after commandeering his van truck in a getaway from the sporting goods store shooting. He said the woman called herself Tania and said she was a willing participant in the April 15 bank holdup in San Francisco which netted more than $10,000.

KEY WITNESS—Tom Dean Mathews, 18, in a photo made at a baseball game May 17 after he had been kidnaped and released by the SLA, is the apparent key witness in connection with FBI charges filed against Patty Hearst. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Giscard d'Estaing... 20th President of France

PARIS (AP) — Conservative Valéry Giscard d'Estaing, for years the strict finance minister in France's Gaullist governments, has become the republic's 20th president in an election that could reduce friction between Paris and Washington.

Latest official figures gave Giscard d'Estaing a lead of only 371,814 votes out of more than 25 million cast, more than 87 per cent of the registered voters in the largest turnout ever in a French election.

Interior Minister Jacques Chirac declared Giscard d'Estaing elected Sunday night with 50.71 per cent of the vote, 1.5 per cent more than that Socialist Francois Mitterand received.

Foreign policy played almost no role in the free-wheeling, six-week election campaign.

But the first foreign notable to congratulate the new president was President Nixon in a protocol-breaking personal telephone call, which French newspapers viewed as an omen of an easing in prickly relations between the two nations.

Giscard d'Estaing has promised to make technical suggestions soon on European monetary problems and work towards eventual European unity in 1980.

The election pivoted mainly on France's severe economic problems, and also reflected apparent voter discontent with 16 years of Gaullist rule that ended with the death on April 2 of President Georges Pompidou. Giscard d'Estaing and Mitterand eliminated the official Gaullist candidate, Jacques Chaban-Delmas, in balloting May 5.

Giscard d'Estaing still will have to rely on what now appears to be a disproportionately large Gaullist bloc in the lower house of the National Assembly to support his government.

The 48-year-old president-elect heads the Independent Republican party, junior partner of the Gaullists in the governing coalition since Gen. Charles de Gaulle founded the Fifth Republic and became its president in 1958.

He promised "change without risk" during the campaign and pledged to newsmen Sunday, while awaiting vote tabulations, that his government would provide startling changes.

Constitutionally, the formal proclamation of his election can take place at any time in the next 10 days. It is expected late this week, after which Giscard d'Estaing will name his prime minister to replace the caretaker prime minister, Pierre Messmer.

As the tight result was announced, leaders of all groups which supported Giscard d'Estaing warned that he must take into account that almost one Frenchman in two voted for the Socialist candidate, who had promised sweeping reforms and Communists in the government.

State Commission of Correctional inspectors are sharply critical of administrative and supervisory personnel at the Ulster County Jail in a special report on "unusual incidents" at the jail in late February and early March, the Freeman has learned.

"Lack of proper supervision" is cited as a major reason for a Feb. 25 escape by two inmates and for mattress burning incidents in the jail on March 6 and 7.

The report, dated March 26, concludes with a list of seven recommendations, including the issuance of a manual of policies to jail employees, the establishment of a direct line of command by the sheriff "delegating specific duties and responsibilities," and the posting of a list of prisoner rules and regulations.

Prompt reporting of unusual incidents at the jail, the proper supervision of inmates on work details and the issuance of psychiatric type razors instead of injector razors are also recommended. The report charges that the escape of Leroy Struber Jr. and Scott Russo on Feb. 25 "can be attributed to the lack of proper supervision and the failure of the jail personnel to provide concerned 'unusual incidents' at the jail with specific instructions pertaining to the prisoners' duties in the kitchen area of the jail."

Concerning the mattress burning incidents, the report states: "The primary cause of the mattress burning and razor blade swallowing incidents was the lack of communication among the administration, guards and prisoners and lack of proper supervision."

The inspectors also blame authorities for a March 3 drug smuggling incident at the jail, citing the cause as "... the failure of Kingston City Police and Ulster County Jail personnel to conduct thorough body searches when prisoners entered and left the jail facilities."

In apparent contradiction to what Sheriff William B. Martin has said publicly concerning the escape of Struber and Russo, who were at large for more than two months, the report suggests that no deputies were guarding the pair when they escaped.

Seven Recommendations Listed for Jail

"At approximately 1 p.m. on Feb. 25, the cook or duty reported to the sheriff that both prisoners took off over the hill," the inspectors reported. They later state in their report, "Minimum Standards states that proper supervision of trusty prisoners shall be provided by duly appointed staff personnel while prisoners are engaged at assigned work details, especially when such work details are in areas ... outside the security of the jail."

Martin told the Freeman following the escape that a guard chased the two escapees and shouted at them. The report also apparently in part contradicts previous public statements made by Martin concerning the mattress burning incidents, which may have caused more than $50,000 in damage at the new jail.

Martin has told the press that he attributes the incidents to such as abusive language, inmates who wanted drugs or wanted to go to the hospital. The report, however, terms the incidents "demonstrations" and attributes them to "continued mistreatment of the prisoners."

The inspectors state in the report that although prisoners said they were promised restoration of privileges including access to showers and return of personal property — which were withheld as a result of the drug smuggling incident, such privileges continued to be withheld, even from prisoners who entered the jail after the staff of a local newspaper."

Man Dies in Route 209 Accident

TOWN OF ULSTER killed in the Town of Ulster crash as Dragaljub Bacvanovic was killed Sunday night of Queens. Michael Pascariello, when the car in which he was 22, of Milton died in the Town riding flipped over on Route 209 in the Town of Ulster and plunged down an embankment. Two others in the car were injured.

Elsewhere, an Ulster County man was killed in a one-car crash in Orange County Sunday as he was apparently attempting to outrun police who had attempted to stop him for a traffic violation. Police identified the man investigated the 7:20 p.m. mishap, said the car in which the trio was riding was going south on the four-lane highway when it suddenly went off the left side of the road. The driver and the dead passenger both futilely attempted to get the car back under control, police said, and the vehicle swerved back onto the highway and then ran off the left side of the highway, flipping over on the median and sliding down an embankment.

None of the passengers was ejected, police said. Bacvanovic was pronounced dead at the scene of the mishap. Police said the man ap scene. Coroner William S. Keyser ruled the death accidental. No summonses were issued.

In the Orange County fatal crash, Newburgh Town Police said they had attempted to stop the car driven by Pascariello on Route 9W at about 3:10 a.m.

Pascariello turned onto Chestnut Lane, police said, and accelerated to a high rate of speed before he lost control of his car and slammed head-on into a second auto, Joseph McHugh, 19, of 24 Elizabeth Street, Kingston. Purdy was listed in fair condition today. McHugh was listed as satisfactory.

For Sheriff, Assemblyman

Liberals Endorse Martin, Hinchey

KINGSTON sheriff and assemblyman from the 101st District respectively, announced their endorsement of Martin and Hinchey for the posts of Sheriff and Assemblyman in the November elections.

In nominating Martin for his fourth consecutive term, Liberal Party Chairman Donald I. Short said the party feels he has ably performed his duties and brought progress and enlightenment to the office.

Martin has received Liberal Party endorsement in each of his previous winning races for the post of sheriff.

"We feel he is an honest and compassionate man, worthy to continue in office for another term," Short said. According to Short, the executive committee of the party feels Martin, who has come under fire recently on a number of fronts, is "the victim of a particularly vicious hatchet job."

Hinchey's nomination to run for the post of assemblyman for the second consecutive time came as no surprise. With Democratic-Liberal endorsement, he lost to incumbent Assemblyman H. Clark Bell in 1972 by 9,762 votes.

"Maurice Hinchey was very well-received since he so ably represented the Liberal Party's positions in many areas in the 1972 campaign," Short said in a press release concerning the nominations.

Hinchey was particularly lauded for his stand on legislative reform in the state government.

It was just last week that Hinchey officially announced he would be seeking the state assembly seat.

The executive committee of the Liberal Party also interviewed two candidates for the nomination for state senator from the 40th District. They were Paul Atkinson and King James (Jim) Weyant.

Action on this nomination was deferred pending consultations with the members of executive committees of the Liberal Party from other counties served by the senatorial district.

Weyant, the mayor of Highland Falls in Orange County, has been endorsed by the Kingston Democratic Committee.

Atkinson originally announced for the Liberal nomination in the 101st Assembly District but then deferred to Hinchey.

Kissinger Starts Tying Up The Loose Ends

JERUSALEM (UPI) — U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger set out today to sew up the loose ends of a Golan Heights troop separation agreement after Israel and Syria apparently agreed on the crucial issue — a new truce line.

Kissinger hoped to finish day-old troop pullback talks this morning to seek final agreement on the line from Syrian President Hafez Assad and begin talks on the remaining disengagement issues.

Syrian and Israeli officials warned the remaining issues still could block an overall agreement, but both agreed the official described as "American proposals" for the location of a cease-fire line was the key issue to a troop separation pact.

Kissinger set the stage for the breakthrough last Thursday by offering what a high U.S. official described as "American proposals" for the location of a new truce line.

The secretary presented the proposals to Assad in a marathon negotiating session lasting until early Friday and then flew back to Jerusalem to put the American ideas to the Israeli cabinet.

At that point, Kissinger appeared to believe there was little hope for an accord. His bags were packed and plane ready to fly home Saturday when Syria surprisingly accepted the proposals — with modifications.

Israel then agreed to the plan on Sunday after Kissinger met with Prime Minister Golda Meir and other top cabinet officials in Jerusalem.

The line that was offered by the secretary of state was of such a nature that both Israel and Syria can accept it, Israeli Information Minister Shimon Peres said after the talks.

The remaining details of a disengagement plan were expected to include creation of a buffer zone, a thinning of troops on both sides, a U.N. force to police the cease-fire and an exchange of prisoners.

Israel was believed willing from the start to return all 523 square miles of Syrian territory captured in last October's Middle East war, but was reported to have balked at giving back Golan Heights land seized in the six-day, 1967 conflict.

Israeli diplomatic sources said the Jewish state also had been willing to return Quneitra, former capital of the Golan Heights, but was unwilling to give up the road to Damascus and three strategic hills near the town.

The hills, believed to be the major issue in dispute, overlook three of the 17 Israeli settlements built on the heights since the 1967 war.

Jubilation in India Over Nuclear Explosion

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Ram said, however, India would never use its new-found nuclear clout for military purposes. "Our objective is to use our knowledge in nuclear science only for peaceful purposes," he said.

"Our armed forces know this is not for their use," Ram said in an interview. "I think any government will have to think many times before it reverses our decision."

India set off the 10 to 15 kiloton nuclear blast (equal to 10,000 to 15,000 tons of TNT) Saturday 300 feet below the desert in western Rajasthan State.

The explosion gained new domestic stature for Mrs. Gandhi, whose administration has been rocked by devastating economic problems and a series of labor protests.

About 30 per cent of India's 580 million people live below the subsistence level. Some 75 per cent of recent university graduates are unemployed.

Food consumption has dropped despite a 13 million annual rise in population.

The nuclear test was hailed by politicians from the extreme left to the extreme right, with only one significant exception — the Communists.

Communists warned Mrs. Gandhi against trying to hide economic troubles under the "smokescreen" of a nuclear explosion and called for India's atomic power to be used "only for peaceful purposes."

Defense Minister Ram said India decided to develop its own nuclear device three years ago, but the possibility of Pakistan acquiring atomic weapons "had nothing to do with it."

"Our knowledge in nuclear science has raised our status not only in Southeast Asia but in the whole world," he said.

Sweden's Uppsala Seismological Institute said the explosion measured 5.4 on the Richter scale — the strength of a moderate earthquake. The institute compared the blast with a 1969 Chinese detonation of almost six on the scale.

Reds May Be Increasing S. Vietnam Attacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — North Vietnam's Communist party has ordered intensified attacks in South Vietnam over the next couple of months, U.S. intelligence sources report.

However, military analysts said the orders indicate the attacks will be short of a major offensive.

Widespread fighting across South Vietnam in the past few days may reflect the new orders, which sources said the Communist command recently issued to its main-force troop units there.

The orders were said to be based on a resolution adopted by Lao Dong party leaders in Hanoi, calling for increased military operations to support the Communists already have made considerable progress toward another objective, gradually widening control in border regions of South Vietnam.

The stepped-up fighting comes at a time when Pentagon officials say the South Vietnamese will have to save ammunition because Congress has rejected an increase in U.S. military aid for the last two months of this fiscal year.

Defense Budget Debate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Major battles were expected on the House floor today as Congress began debate on the biggest peacetime defense budget in U.S. military history.

The record $91.33 billion budget came through the House Armed Services Committee relatively intact this spring, but even Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger admitted last March that the budget asked about $6 billion more than the military actually needed.

House members, including conservatives, were visibly upset by Schlesinger's statement and might try to make wholesale cuts in 1975 defense appropriations.

The issues most likely to provoke floor fights are military aid to South Vietnam, proposed reductions in U.S. troop strength and money for the controversial B-1 supersonic bomber.

A number of familiar faces in the defense debate, including Reps. Les Aspin, D-Wis., Robert E. Leggett, D-Calif., Otis Pike, D-N.Y., and House Democratic leader, Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill, D-Mass., will lead some of the floor fights.

Aspin, a frequent Pentagon critic, has lined up a coalition of eight Democrats and seven Republicans, including several conservatives, to back an amendment that would lop $700 million off the $22.6 billion bill.

supported by Armed Services Committee Chairman F. Edward Hebert.

An administration proposal for $1.6 billion in aid to Vietnam may be the first casualty. Rep. Leggett will ask the House to limit Vietnam aid to the $900 approved by the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Rep. Ronald Dellums, D-Calif., plans to offer a new report pointing out serious substitute to an amendment to O'Neill's bill to bring 100,000 troops home from overseas by June 30, 1975, but chances of a mandatory troop reduction overseas appeared unlikely for this year.

Congress was expected to go along with a $450 million request for the B-1 bomber despite a new report scheduled to be issued by Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., and Rep. John F. Seiberling, D-Ohio. The report points out serious cost overruns in the B-1 program.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, MAY 20, 1974

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON—Cruddy old Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., commands the House Armed Services Committee from the center of a two-tiered curved desk, with two small American flags flanking his place.

From this command post, he rules his committee with the stern hand of a drill sergeant. His critics have charged, and he has consistently denied, that he is the Pentagon's puppet. He has now provided his own documentation that his critics are right.

The old curmudgeon has just presented to the House his reasons for bequeathing another whopping $1.4 billion in military assistance upon South Vietnam. He simply borrowed the arguments, almost word for word, from the Pentagon.

The Pentagon's chief witness in favor of military aid to Saigon, Maj. Gen. William B. Caldwell, appeared before Hebert's committee on March 26. He testified solemnly: "The objectives of our military assistance to South Vietnam are limited but absolutely essential. We seek to help the GVN (Government of Vietnam) to maintain an effective military deterrent in the face of the considerable threat posed by the North Vietnamese forces within the Republic of Vietnam..." Hebert gave Caldwell's testimony ponderous study for nearly two months. On May 10, Hebert's committee submitted its carefully considered conclusions to the House. Stated the report: "The objective of our military assistance to South Vietnam are limited but absolutely essential. The Government of the United States wishes to help the Government of South Vietnam to maintain an effective military deterrent in the face of the considerable threat posed by the North Vietnamese forces within the Republic of Vietnam..."

testimony and the committee's conclusions agree so precisely that only an occasional word had been changed.

The Pentagon: "Events in Vietnam over the past year have taught us that a lasting peace is possible only if there is a stable balance of power between the opposing sides. A military equilibrium will, we believe, deter new offensives and gradually induce a shift in priorities away from war."

Hebert: "Events in Vietnam over the past year have taught us that a lasting peace is possible only if there is a stable balance of power between the opposing sides. It is the view of the Committee on Armed Services that a military equilibrium in that area of the world will deter new offensives and gradually induce a general shift in priorities by the contending forces away from war."

Hebert: "While the North Vietnamese have increased the conventional capability of the main forces, the cost has been great, and the Government of Vietnam has thus far managed to turn back all their challenges in the past year."

Clearly, the Hebert committee did little more than reprint portions of the Pentagon's prepared statement and present it as its own. The question that begs an answer is, what do we need Congress for?

The Pentagon also made the claim, faithfully reproduced in Hebert's report, that South Vietnam during the past year had "limited itself to justifiable acts of self-defense." Yet miraculously, the Saigon forces wound up with more territory.

Changes in "territorial and population control," explained the Hebert-Pentagon report, had been resolved "in favor of the Government forces."

Footnote: The Armed Services Committee's chief counsel, Frank Slatinshek, candidly admitted to us that he had lifted portions of the Defense Department's own testimony for the Hebert report. The Pentagon's statement, said Slatinshek, "says it all, and the committee subscribes to it."

HEADLINES AND FOOTNOTES: About the time billionaire Howard Hughes sent $100,000 in cash to President Nixon's confidante and collector Bebe Rebozo, Nevada's former Governor Paul Laxalt was offered $500,000 to help a man with racket connections get a casino license. The message was delivered by Jimmy the Greek Snyder who told the Governor the cash would be laundered and impossible to trace. But the honest Laxalt flatly turned down the offer. (In response to our inquiries, both Laxalt and Jimmy the Greek confirmed the incident)

In addition to the $100,000 from Hughes, Senate investigators have established that Rebozo collected another $50,000 in cash from A.D. and J.E. Davis, the founders of the Winn-Dixie supermarket chain. It is an interesting coincidence that the Davis brothers had been given an intensive tax audit, with half-a-dozen agents going over their financial records...

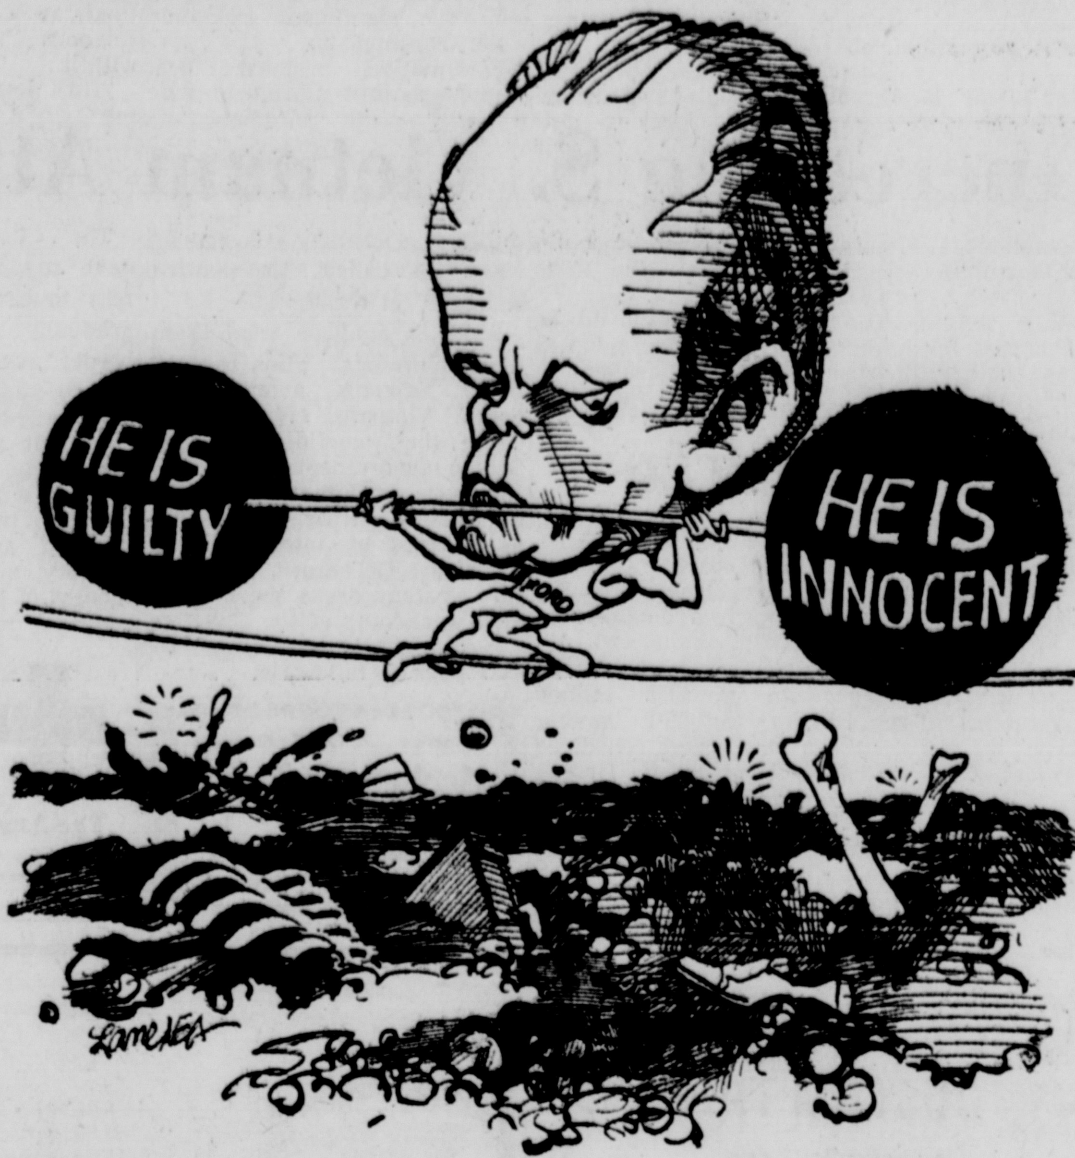

After we reported that the Coast Guard was buying up to $120 million worth of jets from Rockwell International under a dubious sole-source contract, the Coast Guard notified Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., that it is backing down on the costly contract and opening it up to competitive bidding. A few days ago we quoted from secret Federal Power Commission staff papers, warning that the consumers would suffer from Pennzoil's decision to divest itself of a huge gas pipeline company. After our story, the commissioners backed the consumers by a four-to-nothing vote and ordered an in-depth investigation of the Pennzoil spin-off.

Bonn Uncertainty

Willy Brandt first said that his wish to take responsibility for the spy scandal motivated him in resigning as chancellor of West Germany. Later he said there had been both political and personal reasons for his resignation. There are hints in the West German press that expected disclosures as to his personal conduct may be involved.

Though the reasons for his departure from power are of interest, their significance fades in comparison with the potential impact of Brandt's action on his country's future course. The election of his designated successor, Finance Minister Helmut Schmidt, is all but assured. Under Schmidt there are certain to be differences of style and emphasis. The chancellor-to-be sets great store by the Atlantic Alliance. But he is thought to be somewhat cool toward Brandt's cherished Ostpolitik policies of growing accommodation with the Soviet Union and the Communist nations of eastern Europe.

Schmidt has predicted some public confusion between now and when he and his new cabinet will take over the government. Political opponents of Brandt seem bent on doing what they can to fulfill this prediction, and are calling for new elections. Their claim is that under Brandt the government's foreign and domestic policies were "built on illusions," and that his resignation was the "result of grave mistakes."

Thus far Schmidt has rejected the demand for elections. Opposition parties may nevertheless force some changes upon him. At present there can be little certainty as to the course West Germany will follow now that Brandt has relinquished the power he once struggled so hard to win.

Stick With Old

A University of Nebraska music student, Mrs. Monica Mills, has joined the swelling ranks of those who think "The Star-Spangled Banner" has served long enough as our national anthem and should be sent to pasture. We single her out from the many others of like mind because she offers a substitute—music by an early American composer named William Billings, words by Monica Mills.

The music she proposes may be fine for the purpose. It seems that the Revolutionary army marched to the tune, and Mrs. Mills opines: "When I first heard it... I became really angry that it wasn't the anthem. That's how beautiful it is." This certainly makes it sound like a great improvement over the vagaries of the melody Francis Scott Key set his famous words to.

When it comes to Mrs. Mills' verses intended to supplant those words, however, we part company with her. (Sample: "Bless'd with great beauty, we're charged to keep it so; bless'd with great conscience, our own convictions grow." A further sample: "We've had our trials and troubles by the score. Many's the time we've been engaged in bloody war.")

Pedestrian stuff. If more poetic lines than these cannot be found for a new national anthem, perhaps the nation had better just stick with the old.

No, But Maybe

Jack Robertson, who is regional administrator of the Federal Energy Office in the Pacific Northwest, may have let the cat out of the bag the other day. He reportedly said that oil brought south by the Alaska pipeline would be exported to Japan and elsewhere.

This was disputed—sort of—by Secretary of the Interior Rogers C. B. Morton when questioned at a House Public Lands subcommittee appearance. He noted that under the law export of the Alaskan oil is prohibited unless the President finds that the United States doesn't need it. However, he added: "If it were in the national interest to export to Japan or other countries, I think the export licenses would be granted."

In other words: No—but maybe. Morton's remarks were not an entirely convincing contradiction of a regional FEO official's statement that Alaska oil may, after all, find its way overseas.

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—The White House transcripts, otherwise so damaging to President Nixon, have confirmed that he at least attempted to break Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy's silence a year ago—thereby suggesting one shaky line of defense against impeachment. Mr. Nixon is not revealed by the transcripts as exerting any excess of energy to crack the Watergate scandal by forcing Liddy or anybody else to talk. But he did accede, somewhat hesitantly, to the request by the Watergate prosecutors to help with Liddy. He failed, prosecutors believe, because John Mitchell was running this part of the conspiracy. Mr. Nixon had always shied away from a direct run on Mitchell who was not talking, and Liddy took orders only from Mitchell.

But the President's Liddy ploy may fit the new legalistic strategy of the White House. Even if the President's moral values emerge shredded by the transcripts, it might be argued he was not in total control and that he did finally cooperate with Justice Department efforts to break the scandal by breaking Liddy.

The President's discursive

Watergate discussions with his counsel, John W. Dean III, during February and March 1973, show no interest in opening the sealed lips of Liddy or any other conspirator. On March 13, when Dean reported that White House aide Gordon Strachan was "stonewalling" the FBI, Mr. Nixon replied: "I guess he should, shouldn't he?" Moments later, Mr. Nixon expressed admiration for the iron-disciplined Liddy, then refusing to give federal authorities the time of day. "How the hell does Liddy stand up so well?"

Nor did the Watergate prosecutors in the U.S. attorney's office here look to Liddy until the final stages of breaking the case in mid-April. Fearful of an impasse in their negotiations with Dean over immunity, they desperately sought an alternative witness. The fanatical Liddy would have seemed unlikely had not the prosecutors obtained information that Liddy had told Mitchell he would do whatever his superiors ordered—talk or not talk. Mitchell was his obvious "superior," but would not the President also qualify?

Thus, on Sunday evening, April 15, 1973, with the scandal cracking open, a request from the prosecutors was relayed by telephone to Mr. Nixon by Assistant Atty. Gen. Henry Petersen. "A signal from you might bring the truth from Liddy," Petersen said.

The transcript indicates discomfort by the President. After Mr. Nixon protested that "I never met the man, I don't know what I can do with him," Petersen responded that he would relay the presidential signal to Liddy. Mr. Nixon changed the subject: "I get it. Uh huh. OK. Now you will be through with your things you think by 12:30. Right?" Petersen dropped the subject.

Just seven minutes later, Mr. Nixon was back on the telephone to Petersen's home with a 180-degree change in attitude: "You are to tell him (Liddy) the President wants everybody involved in this to tell everything they know." When Petersen said he would contact Liddy's lawyer in the morning, Mr. Nixon insisted: "You might do it tonight."

I don't want to stall around. What happened during those seven minutes to so transform the President's attitude? Regrettably, there are no tapes for most Nixon office conversations of April 15. Unknown to Petersen, Nixon confidants H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman were seated with him during both those telephone conversations.

Since other tapes show them seeking a presidential image as zealous Watergate investigator, it can be assumed that they urged Mr. Nixon to call Petersen right back.

They were taking no great risks. Even if Liddy should talk, he had no connection with Haldeman, Ehrlichman or the President. He could incriminate only Mitchell, and transcripts of April 14 showed this would fit the Nixon strategy.

The signal was fruitless. The prosecutors concluded Liddy would take orders only from Mitchell, and Mitchell was not cooperating.

But the President now could claim he really tried to break the case. On April 27, he told press secretary Ron Ziegler: "Since March 21st when I had that conversation with Dean, I have broken my ass to get the facts of this case. Right? Tried to get that damn Liddy to talk."

The transcripts prove that claim is inflated. But they do show Nixon agreement to at least one prosecution request and, more important, his impotency with at least one Watergate conspirator.

This question remains: why did Mr. Nixon never signal John Mitchell, his former intimate? Nevertheless the Liddy ploy gives his hard-pressed lawyers one slender reed to lean on, and for that they should be grateful.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

The Biggest Bird in the Sky

BERRY'S WORLD

"They developed 'childproof' containers for dangerous things — why don't we develop 'adultproof' packages for cigarettes?"

We walked the pale concrete at Los Angeles International Airport. Captain Edward P. McDonald was squinting his eyes against the sun looking up. Mechanics were bolting a fifth — repeat, fifth — engine onto the wing of an enormous 747.

A fifth engine. It was one-third the size of the Lincoln Tunnel. It had been repaired by National Airlines at Los Angeles and with its turbo-blades chocked, its fires out, it would be flown nonstop to Miami. "No problem," McDonald said, walking back, shading his eyes against the six-story tall. "She'll pull us 2½ degrees left. So, before takeoff, I'll retrim 2½ degrees right."

McDonald, like Thad Royall of Eastern and Dick Merrill, is a member of that diminishing company of great pilots who should never be retired. They go back to when a DC-3 was considered a ball of fire.

We climbed 30 feet to the flight deck. I showed him my FAA pass for riding jump seat. It was the first time I had been in a 747, and I believed only half of what I saw.

Sailing and flight have been my true loves. I flew OX biplanes once. We cruised at 40 m.p.h. and took off from the runways of Newark in a 60-mile gale and flew backwards in safety. At least I think it was safe.

Later, I flew Curtiss Condors with 600 h.p. Conquers on the lower wing. Lockheed Lodestars, Travelairs, Fokkers, Fords, humpbacked Bellancas, DC-2s, 45, 75.

But I never became a pilot. I'm as tense as a bride listening to a knock on the hotel door. So I ask a thousand questions, write about aircraft and never address a crew until we're at cruising altitude.

Captain McDonald's hair is as white as mine. On the ground, he sits 30 feet above the runway, which is a nice thing to remember when you're landing. Gordon Biggar was his first officer. James R. Johnson, who could win a medal for consideration of strangers, was flight engineer.

The 747 is said to have two decks. It's really three. The top deck has a cockpit and, behind it, an ornate lounge. A circular stairway leads to the main deck where four movies were being shown to 32 passengers in separate "living rooms." Two elevators take you down to Robert Kubilius, who cooks hundreds of dinners electrically and has no window and never knows where the hell he is.

The flagship of Christopher Columbus was the "Santa Maria" and weighed 80 tons. The 747 could hide that ship in its belly and fly anywhere. McDonald and Biggar began the litany of check lists. Our gross weight, plane, passengers, fuel and luggage was 567,000 lbs. — 283 tons.

This airliner, with its redundant computers, can be aimed down a runway, lift off, make its turn over the Pacific Ocean, climb to 45,000 feet, set exact course for Miami, Florida, at 600 m.p.h., and land itself in four hours and six minutes.

No hands. For the passenger, there is barely time for a full-course dinner, a cocktail and a movie. The 747 averages about seven tons of fuel per hour, so, every 60 minutes, she's 14,000 pounds lighter.

Engineer Johnson kept cutting the throttles back because, as the 747 becomes lighter, she flies faster. McDonald doesn't want her to go faster than 0.84 of the speed of sound.

There were nine National Airlines stewardesses who lie. They will not let you fly them. I read the computer. It's a bright, digital display between captain and first officer. Phoenix, it said, was 240.3 miles behind us; Miami was 190.9 miles ahead. The tenths of a mile were clicking so fast, each direction that I could not call them aloud.

We were southeast of New Orleans, over the Gulf of Mexico at 33,040 feet, when the two radars sets displayed St. Petersburg and Sarasota, Florida.

The inertial guidance systems, first used in ballistic missiles, are hooked onto the automatic pilot and automatic landing system on this airplane. It is so precise that, at one point, the system lit a figure 127, to show that we were picking up that much tailwind in the jetstream.

Coming down slowly, steadily into Miami, the 747 held onto the one ton of pressurized air it carries for normal passenger breathing. McDonald called "tuckdown" as the altimeter started 30 feet altitude. The tires screamed. The $20 million dollar 747 makes man look incompetent...

Weekend Burglaries in City

KINGSTON and time in less than a week the Burglaries reported today at the Kingston High School Vocational Building and at Myron J. Michael Junior High School are among four weekend break-ins under investigation by Kingston detectives.

Detectives said the two schools were apparently entered sometime Sunday night or early today. Keys to classrooms were reported missing from both buildings, and a candy machine was broken into in the junior high school.

Meanwhile, a burglar was apparently scared off Sunday night after entering the French Dye Works, 524 Broadway. Detectives said the owner of the firm, Milton Dubin, spotted a man in the building and contacted police. The burglar was gone, however, when police arrived. Nothing was reported missing.

The break-in marked the second time in less than a week the French Dye Works was entered.

A burglary was also reported over the weekend at the Universal Road Machinery Company, set and an unknown amount of cash was reported stolen from the Broadway business establishment. A radio valued at $50 and tools valued at $20 were said to be missing.

TELEVISION — A MENACE OR A BLESSING?

From time to time parents ask my opinion of TV for young children, says Phyllis W. Barlow, Extension Home Economist. They want to know if it's "bad" for their kids to watch it.

Child development research has not been able to say how harmful television is. However, Urie Bronfenbrenner, an authority in child development, raises the concern that TV prevents children from 1) active play, 2) self-initiated exploration, 3) interaction with each other (including squabbling), 4) interaction with adults. In other words, allowing a child to watch endless hours of television substitutes passive non-involvement for the kind of active, involved, learning through discovery play that is basic to the learning process.

Does this mean that children must never be allowed to watch TV? "From the point of what's good for the child, I guess I would say yes — nothing on TV can compete in value with what a preschooler needs to learn through active sensory involvement," says Jennie Birkmeyer, Extension specialist in early childhood education.

But it seems to me only fair to see the situation as one in which children and parents actually live. (And now I begin to talk more from my role as a mother of four children than as a "professional.") I'm not sure that using television as a babysitter isn't a good idea provided we use the same criteria in selecting the programs that we would apply to selecting a real live sitter to who we would entrust our children. For example, I am happy to entrust my children to Captain Kangaroo or Mr. Rogers, particularly because I believe I will be a "better mother" for having one-half hour to wash dishes or fix dinner or sit quietly over a cup of coffee and put my head together. In a sense using TV in this way is like asking a grandmother or aunt to take the kids out of the kitchen and tell them stories for one-half hour — you may not approve each individual story (i.e., segment of the program) but you trust the person or basic approach of the program. Obviously the difference — and the danger — lies in the lack of interaction between child and television. However, used sparingly, as long as the adult makes sure that play, activity, and interaction with other people is not foreshortened or cheated, I think small amounts of carefully selected TV can improve the child-care relationship by providing the kinds of breathers members of an extended family used to provide.

Here are some criteria parents may wish to use for allowing young children to watch TV:

— Do you trust the person or situation of the TV program (young children model or imitate adult behavior)?

— Is the situation or TV character realistic? Cartoons are often bizarre and fantastic — people leap from tall buildings — and walk away. Young children cannot distinguish fantasy from reality.

Using these criteria, a parent might easily rule out some cartoons, quiz shows, soap operas, and vice squad shows; but would allow a parent to select young children's shows, family situation comedies, and passively slapstick.

So nice to have around the house!

Hints From Heloise

Dear Folks:

I was buying a gift for a friend this week and there was a plastic purple marker with the price right on it!

I told the clerk that I would buy it if she would get the purple price off.

That sweet gal just grabbed a can of hair spray and squirted away and wiped it off with a facial tissue.

Now if that doesn't take the cake, I'll eat it! Try it — it really works!

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I enjoy your hints very much. Some of the answers are so simple, I wonder why in the world I hadn't already thought of it.

My solution to iron cookware rusting is to turn the pot upside down after washing. Just prop one of the sides up a bit to let a little air in.

This really works as I have used this method for years.

Mrs. Elbert Little

As you said, some of the answers are so simple.

Now why hadn't I thought of that before!

Latest Wrinkle in Belly Dancing Debate

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for saying that belly dancing is a respected art form. You're absolutely right. It's also marvelous exercise for toning up the muscles and trimming off fat.

In our little town of Ashland, Ky. (population 29,000) 50 of us women (mostly senior citizens) are taking lessons in belly dancing at the YWCA. And we're considered part of the Bible belt!

ANITA HOWERTON

DEAR ANITA: Since belly dancing originated in the Middle East during Biblical times, it's entirely appropriate that it should be taught in the Bible belt.

Let's hear it from Suzanne Hunsucker, a reporter from the Coloradoan in Fort Collins, Colo. She visited a belly dancing class sponsored by the Parks and Recreation Department because belly dancing had become a gut issue in that community, and she wanted to get the straight dope. She wrote:

"One middle-aged student said, 'There's nothing sexy about it. Anyone watching us sweat it out would hardly get aroused.' It's exhausting physical exercise. At first it nearly killed me. I started using parts I never knew I had. However, soon I got to know my body and began talking to my joints."

"The instructor said, 'I notice a real change in the women taking the class. They become much freer in their movements after a while. When they dance, they lift up their heads and smile.'"

"Who knows," wrote the reporter, "with inhibitions being shed and bellies being

Dear Abby

BY ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

strengthened. Fort Collins may someday be the belly dancing capital of the West."

Wait. There's more: From New Orleans came a feature story published in the States — Item by Rosemary Ruiz, a reporter who actually joined a belly dancing class in order to get some firsthand information about it. She wrote:

"Until now, belly dancing has always had a certain seedy aura about it, seldom suggesting anything more refined than a carnival hoochy koochy dance, but lately the dance has enjoyed a surge of popularity. I got my best friend and my sister-in-law to enroll with me. We were relieved to see ourselves duplicated in the other students, ordinary coeds and housewives ranging in age from 18 to 55. All quite sheepish about it."

"My daughter thinks it's hilarious," said one. "I told my husband I was taking ballet," says another. "My husband is a school principal," said Lucille V., "so I'm furthering my education."

She laughs, but comes back in five minutes to add quite soberly, "Actually, I also own Arabian horses and am very interested in the Arabic culture. Please put that in."

"The instructor, Habena, whose real name is not Habena, (but whose real measurements are 43-26-35) said, 'People put belly dancing in the same category as stripping. It isn't. Stripping is artless and vulgar; belly dancing is an ancient art. There are many reasons why women take belly dancing lessons, but most of them usually lies somewhere else."

DEAR ABBY: We in the dancing profession commend you for upholding the dignity of belly dancing. It's the name that so many people find offensive. The dance is beautiful when artistically performed. I wish they would change the name to "Oriental dancing."

If you think it's easy — like the hula, just try to move the upper half of your body while keeping the lower half perfectly still. Then try to move the lower half of your body and keep the upper half still. I'll bet you can't do it.

TARA FROM ISTANBUL

DEAR TARA: You're right. I tried and couldn't. But you've given me an idea. I think I'll take some lessons. (Privately, of course.)

Narrow Labor Win In Australian Voting

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — known for several days—will give Labor a majority of one to three seats. The leader of the Labor government appeared today to have won re-election, but newspapers and opposition politicians said the Laborites' narrow victory margin was a warning from the voters.

The latest returns showed Sunday that Labor had won 64 seats in Saturday's race for the 127-member House of Representatives, while Bill Snedden's Liberal-Country party coalition had 57. Six seats were undecided. The old House had 125 seats, 67 held by Labor.

Most analysts predicted the final results—which may not be winning a majority.

Flyers Made Their Point

THE SYMBOL — Flyers' Bobby Clark (L) and Bernie Parent hold the Stanley Cup as they leave the ice after they beat the Boston Bruins 1-0 in their best of seven series in six games. (UPI)

By DON HALE

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Kate Smith, Bernie Parent and home ice were great advantages but the Philadelphia Flyers say there is really only one way to win the Stanley Cup—hard work.

The Flyers rolled up their sleeves Sunday and did a job on the Boston Bruins, taking a 1-0 decision to win the best-of-seven series four games to two and become the first National Hockey League expansion team to win the Stanley Cup.

"We didn't beat Boston by fighting," said winger Dave Schultz, the most penalized player in the league. "We beat Boston by good, honest hard work. They didn't realize what hard work is until we showed them. We kept giving that second effort."

The Flyers, who earned a reputation as the "Broad Street Bullies" while becoming the most penalized club in the NHL, used their tight-checking aggressive tactics to hold off the Bruins and make Rick MacLeish's first period goal stand up.

Flyers' goaltender Parent stopped 30 Boston shots and earned the Conn Smythe trophy as the Most Valuable Player in the playoffs but he really was tested only a few times.

"Sometimes there are only four or five times when you have to make good saves in a game, like today," he said. "Sometimes there are 11 or 12. We got the breaks today but the way you get the breaks is by working."

Defenseman Ed Van Impe, who has been with the Flyers since their inception in 1967, agreed with Parent.

"We worked too hard to lose it now," he said. "Hard work has to pay off. You can't just be lucky, you have to be good. Our sense of good is hard work."

The combination of the Flyers' hustling, bustling workmanlike effort with the home-ice advantage and an appearance by Miss Smith added up to a huge mountain for the Bruins to climb.

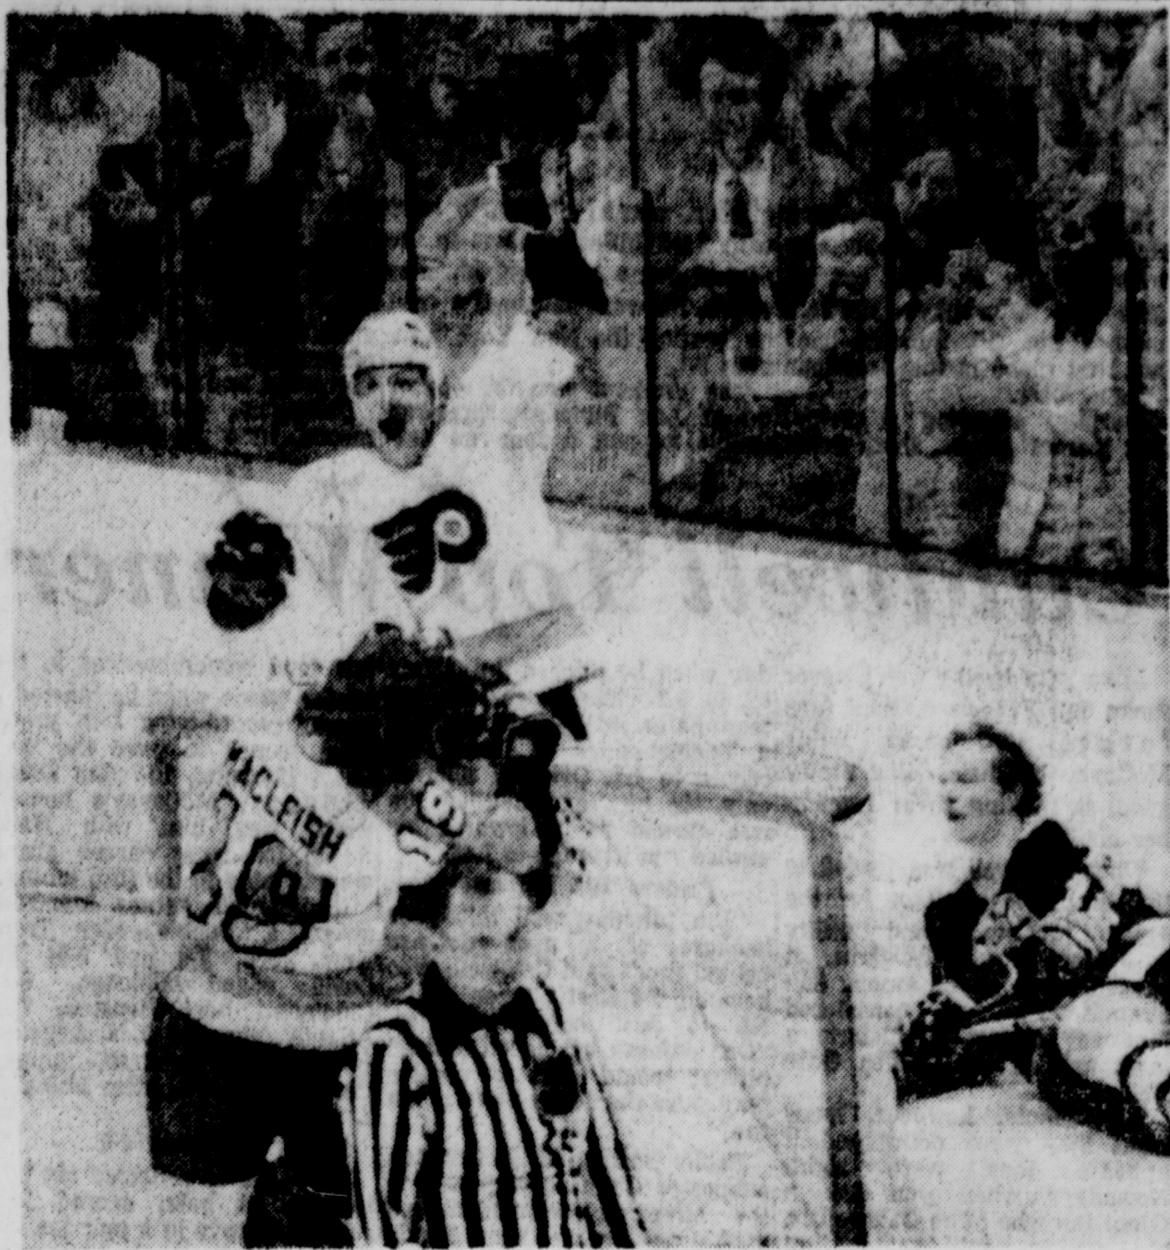

The Flyers won all nine of their playoff games played at the Spectrum and have compiled an amazing 37-3-1 record in the 41 games at which Miss Smith's rendition of "God Bless America" has been played.

She made a rare personal appearance at the Spectrum Sunday and was greeted by a thunderous ovation. She sat in the Flyers' executive box and cheered on the home club.

"I don't know the woman myself," said Flyers' winger Bill Barber, "but you hear her sing and you hear the crowd and it's got to get you up."

It was the Bruins who came out smoking early, however, firing 16 shots at Parent in the first period. But the Flyers made one of their eight first-period shots count.

MacLeish tipped in a blue line shot by Andre Dupont at 14:38 and the fans settled in for a tense hockey game.

Gordie Howe Family And Joy in Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Gordie

Howe says winning the World Hockey Association's World Cup with his two sons is the thrill of his career and the city's fans agree—it's their first pro championship in 13 years.

Houston's Aeros ended the championship series with a 6-2 victory over the outmanned Chicago Cougars Sunday night to sweep the finals in four straight games and this unlikely hockey city went wild.

The Aeros rammed in three goals in each of the first two periods, with two goals each by Murray Hall and Larry Lund.

Four assists by Gordie Howe, and then sparred for the final period.

"We're No. 1" and "Goodbye Cougars" rang out from the stadium room only crowd of 9,874 early in the first period and increased in intensity as the game progressed.

The Aeros in only their second season became Houston's first pro championship team since the Oilers won the American

Howe will take longer, however before answering the question of his playing status for next season, the second under a four-year contract with the Aeros.

There seemed little doubt from the start of Sunday's game that the Aeros would win the game and bring to a halt the lengthy WHA season.

Lund opened the scoring with his first goal at 14:34. Hall followed with goals at 15:47 and 1:55.

Andre Hinse, Gordon Labossiere and Lund scored on power play goals in the second period to make the victory complete. Chicago's Jan Popiel and Ricky Morris scored goals for Chicago.

"When you give up the game and then come back and play with your two sons and win the World Cup to boot, that has to be the greatest thrill," said Howe, dripping with champagne in the post-game celebration of the Aeros' locker room.

Rhubarb Building For Indy '500'

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A.J. Foyt is on the pole, the field is completed and all appears ready for Sunday's 38th running of the Indianapolis 500-mile auto race . . . but it might not be so.

The 39-year-old Texan sat and watched 11 futile efforts to overtake his qualifying speed of 191.632 miles per hour, set earlier in May at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

The group—now down to six cars—said it had 13 signed affidavits and verbal agreement from a representative of each of the 33 starters except the slowest driver in the field, rookie Larry Cannon.

Cannon, who missed out under similar circumstances last year, said he would not sign. But the protesting group remained hopeful.

Wright Huggins Jr., an attorney and an associate in one of the racing teams involved, then took a proposal to Speedway Vice President Joe Cloutier that would add a 12th row to the field.

Under the proposal, the two alternate cars—driven by Jigger Sirois and Denny Zimmerman—automatically would be put in the 12th row and the other spot would go up for grabs among the six entries Huggins represented.

Huggins said that if an agreement could not be reached, "at 12:01, we could go to the federal district court for an injunction against the race. We could file a class action suit involving all the cars not yet qualified."

"But that is just one of a number of remedies (to the situation)," Huggins added, "and I hope it doesn't come to that."

Then, the protesting group was told by Speedway officials the matter could be reconsidered if they could get signed affidavits from a representative of each of the cars in the starting field and the two alternates which would free the Speedway from possible legal action if trials were resumed.

At the request of the parties involved, the deadline for getting those affidavits to Speedway officials was extended from 11 a.m. Sunday to noon today.

By Sunday afternoon, the group—now down to six cars—said it had 13 signed affidavits and verbal agreement from a representative of each of the 33 starters except the slowest driver in the field, rookie Larry Cannon.

Cannon, who missed out under similar circumstances last year, said he would not sign. But the protesting group remained hopeful.

Wright Huggins Jr., an attorney and an associate in one of the racing teams involved, then took a proposal to Speedway Vice President Joe Cloutier that would add a 12th row to the field.

"But that is just one of a number of remedies (to the situation)," Huggins added, "and I hope it doesn't come to that."

The only driver to come close to Foyt during the qualifying runs was Johnny Rutherford, who drove his Offenhauser-powered McLaren to an average speed of 190.446 m.p.h. But Rutherford will start on the inside of the ninth row because he lost his chance to qualify in the first session when a blown engine kept him from getting into line before the deadline that day.

Mike Hiss, 1972 Indy Rookie of the Year, won the best position among Saturday's qualifiers with an average speed of 187.490 m.p.h. First-day qualifier Wallyallenbach is in the middle of the front row with a 189.683 clocking.

Among the other Saturday qualifiers were defending champion Gordon Johncock, 1969 winner Mario Andretti, defending national driving champion Roger McCluskey, twotime Indy winner Al Unser, and comeback-minded Salt Walther.

Johncock, whose car was approved by USAC officials after being impounded for several hours to test the legality of the turbocharger, and Andretti made it into the second row beside Mike Mosley.

McCluskey and Unser joined Rutherford in row nine, Walther—critically burned last May in an abortive start at the Speedway—qualified in the middle of row five.

Other veterans qualifying in the final session were Jerry Karl, Dick Simon, John Martin, Rick Muther, Bob Harkey, Jim Hurtubise and Jim McElreath.

Rookies Jan Opperman, Tom Bigelow, Johnny Parsons and Cannon also made it into the field.

Jabbar Wins Podoloff But Trails Walt Frazier

NEW YORK (AP) — Milwaukee's Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, winner of the Podoloff Trophy as the Most Valuable Player in the National Basketball Association, was named the NBA's first-team All-Star center for the fourth straight year, Commissioner Walter Kennedy announced.

But the massive Jabbar, 7-foot-2, finished second in the voting to New York guard Walt Frazier, who polled 15,291 of a possible 17 in the balloting, with each league city getting one full vote.

It was the third first-team selection for Frazier, a Knicks veteran. He led the Knicks in scoring with an average of 20.5 points per game, ranked fourth in the league in assists with 6.9, and made the NBA

All-Defensive team for the sixth straight year.

Joining Abdul-Jabbar and Frazier on the first team were forwards John Havlicek of the champion Boston Celtics—also making his fourth consecutive first-team appearance—and Rick Barry of the Golden State Warriors and guard Gail Goodrich of the Los Angeles Lakers.

Each member of the first team receives $500, while the second team gets $250.

Bob McAdoo of the Buffalo Braves was named the second team center, and Elvin Hayes of the Washington Bullets and Spencer Haywood of the Seattle SuperSonics the forwards, while Dave Bing of the Detroit Pistons and Norm Van Lier of the Chicago Bulls were the second team guards.

Soccer Cosmos Beaten Again

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Cosmos lost their third straight North American Soccer League home game Sunday at the hands of the Rochester Lancers, 2-1.

Rochester opened the scoring in the first half as Tommy Ord scored at the 10 minute mark.

In the second half the Cosmos came back on a goal by Malcolm Dawes, on a header from out front. Throughout the second half the Cosmos pressed but the Lancers struck again in the 63rd minute from Andy Rymarek.

Finks Quits

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Jim Finks, executive vice president and general manager of the Minnesota Vikings, has resigned.

Finks, 47, did so Thursday and reaffirmed his decision Saturday at a Vikings board of directors meeting, it was learned Sunday night.

"I feel this decision is in the best interests of my future and my family's future," said Finks, who took over as Vikings general manager Sept. 10, 1964. "And I really feel it's going to be in the best interests of the Vikings."

Finks said he felt it was time for a change after 10 years with the organization, but declined to elaborate.

Vikings President Max Winter said he had no comment on Finks' resignation, except that "we're sorry to see him leave."

Board member Jack Steele said ownership was one of the factors in the resignation.

"I think Jim has been looking for a job where he can have some ownership," Steele said. "I'm sure this is what he wanted. And there isn't any way we could give him ownership in the club. This is the big problem. Jim was quite adamant about it when he turned in his resignation to the board."

Finks had a three-year contract that expired May 1.

Coach Bud Grant, who was hired by Finks in 1967, expressed shock at the resignation.

"Jim Finks had more to do with the success of the Vikings than any one person," Grant said. "He's been a great guy to work with. I'm hoping he will change his mind."

Murphy Boon to Brewers

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Tom Murphy, one of the major surprises of the baseball season, gave the Milwaukee Brewers a split another big lift Sunday—back into first place in the American League East.

The Yankees won the opener, Murphy, enjoying a bright new career as a short relief pitcher, earned his fourth save with 2-3 hitless innings in the second game of a doubleheader, as the Brewers salvaged a split by beating the New York Yankees 3-1.

Caldwell Top Winner

Mike Caldwell won't ever make San Francisco Giant fans forget the name Willie McCovey but he's doing pretty good at making them remember his own.

When Caldwell was traded to the Giants last winter for the aging McCovey and utility outfielder Bernie Williams, it caused much anger among San Franciscans, who considered McCovey almost as historic a landmark as the Golden Gate Bridge.

The Giants, however, knew what they were doing and it appears they were right. Nowadays when you ask a Giant fan who Mike Caldwell is, the answer you'll get is that he's the winningest pitcher in the National League.

Caldwell turned in another superlative performance Sunday when he pitched the Giants to an 8-2 victory over his teammates in the first game of a doubleheader to boost his record to 7-1. Caldwell allowed only six hits and neither run was earned as he lowered his earned run average to 1.46.

Praises His Defense

"I'm pitching well this year because of a good defense behind me," said Caldwell, who became the first pitcher in the NL to post seven victories. "Our defense has jelled and no pitcher could ask for better play than the fellows have given me."

Bobby Bonds and Ed Goodson supported Caldwell very well in the offensive department as each drove in three runs. Bonds had a homer, a triple and a single, while Goodson had two doubles and two singles.

Caldwell gave Giant fans a few fond remembrances in the second game when he blasted a career record-tying 15th grand slam homer to pave the way for a 12-inning, 10-7 San Diego victory. McCovey's homer, which tied him with Hank Aaron for most career grand slams, came in the fifth inning.

In other NL games, Montreal swept a doubleheader from New York, 7-3 and 5-0; St. Louis edged Chicago, 6-5; Cincinnati beat Houston, 7-1; Atlanta trimmed Los Angeles, 4-2, and Pittsburgh nipped Philadelphia, 2-1, after losing 3-2.

Expos 7-5, Mets 4-0

Jeff Burroughs is one person who will not receive the traditional "thank you for coming" announcement from the Kansas City Royals.

Burroughs, 23, the Texas Rangers' slugger who now leads the major leagues with 41 runs batted in, padded that total considerably at Kansas City the past four days, driving in 10 runs with nine hits in 16 trips to the plate.

"You could hit against Walter Johnson in this (the Royals) park and still have a good game here," Burroughs said Sunday after driving home four runs that carried the Rangers to an 8-3 victory over Kansas City. "This is just a good hitting ballpark. You can't beat the astroturf."

Brown Wins First

Burroughs, who was 4-for-5, singled home a run in the first, singled in two more in the fourth and then drove home one in the seventh to provide Jackie Brown, in relief of David Clyde, with his first win of the season.

Elsewhere in the AL, Cleveland swept a doubleheader from Detroit, 2-1 and 9-4; California topped Minnesota, 4-2, before losing 4-2; Boston dumped Baltimore twice, 11-2 and 6-1; New York split with Milwaukee, 6-2 and 3-1, and Oakland upended the Chicago, 8-3.

Indians 2-9, Tigers 1-4

Jack Brainer's two-run homer combined with Gaylord Perry's two-hit pitching gave the Tribe the win in the opener. Buddy Bell belted another two-run blast in the nightcap to help Bob Johnson to his second victory.

Red Sox 11, Orioles 2, 4

Carlton Fisk smacked a two-run homer in the ninth inning of the nightcap to provide the Red Sox with their sweep. In the first game, a 17-hit attack led by Rico Petrocelli's four singles, allowed Reggie Cleveland to pick up his fourth win in six decisions.

Angels 4-2, Twins 2-4

Nolan Ryan struck out 12 batters in the opener to outdue the Twins' ace Bert Blyleven. Paul Schaal's two-run single was the big hit in a four-run Angels' eighth. Jim Holt collected two singles and two doubles to help the Twins gain a split in the second game.

ON BETTER DAYS — Dan Topping, 61, whose New York Yankees won 15 pennant and 10 world championships, died Saturday in Miami. Topping is shown with (top) Joe DiMaggio as latter signed his 1948 contract and (bottom) with Mickey Mantle watching rookie school game in 1955. (UPI)

Topping Dies; Ex-Yanks Boss

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Del Webb, who had lost a considerable sum operating the Dodgers in a famed partnership that produced 15 American League National League pennants for the New York Yankees from 1947-64, called with his interest in the baseball park and still have a good game here.

"Dan Topping was an outstanding sportsman and to me a great partner in ownership of the New York Yankees," said Webb Sunday, upon learning of the death of Topping, "I never had a finer business association with any person. Mr. Topping devoted much of his life to sports and did a lot for both professional baseball and football in the New York area. The sports world will miss him."

Casey Stengel, who rose to fame as manager of the Yankees under Topping in the late 1940s and early 1950s, credited his former boss with making his own job easier during the Yankees' glory years. Stengel managed the Yankees to 11 pennants and nine world championships from 1947-60, including a record five world championships in a row from 1949-53.

"It's a sad thing. I regret to hear the news of his death," said the 63-year-old Stengel, who was fired by Topping after the 1960 season. "He was outstanding as president of the Yankees and he supplied me with the talent to win all those pennants."

Topping's debut into professional sports came in 1934 when he purchased 50 per cent of the stock in the Brooklyn Dodgers and to pick up his fourth win in six decisions.

Ferraro Hurt At Raceway

KINGSTON

Jack Ferraro was back at Monticello Raceway this morning, reviewing the scene of his Saturday night mishap in which he was injured during the Seventh race at the Raceway.

Ferraro suffered a dislocated left shoulder when the horse in front of his favorite mount, Gerhard Hanover, broke. Ferraro swerved his sulky in an effort to avoid a collision but failed and was thrown to the ground.

He was taken to Monticello Hospital and was released after being treated for the dislocated shoulder and bruises about the neck and face.

"He'll be out of action for about three weeks," his father, John Ferraro, said this morning. "He was riding in good shape when the accident happened. He had Gerhard under control and was fourth in line and it was the kind of race he figured to win."

The accident was the first in Ferraro's career. Levi Gill, driven by Eldon Harner was the morning line favorite at 3-1 in the seventh race, a $4,500 feature.

Saunders Orbiter, with George Gerkner up, who went off at 4-1, was the winner. Levi Gill placed second and Waimarie (9-2) with John Patterson Jr. up was the show horse.

Ferraro expects to take it easy in a few days and start light workouts within two weeks, his father said.

Queens Kegler Retains Lead

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) — Marty Iraggi of Queens continued as the all events leader with 2,103 pins Sunday in the New York State Championship Bowling Tournament here.

The meet ends June 2.

Edward Sheldon of Clifton Park was second with 2,058 pins and Robert DeWall of Canandaigua was third with 2,047.

King Classic To Rod Laver

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Rod Laver is 35, no spring chicken, and he'll take all the help he can get.

The Australian veteran used the newly resurfaced tennis courts at Caesars Palace to great advantage Sunday, easily defeating Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., and winning tennis' largest first prize in the $150,000 Alan King Tennis Classic.

Laver was seeded only fourth but, scrambling over the slow hardcourt surface, he had little trouble stopping the unseeded Riessen by scores of 6-2, 6-2. Winds that gustied up to 35 miles an hour proved the only difficulty.

Laver earned $30,000 plus a $21,000 automobile, bigger by a shade than the $50,000 prize won by Australia's John Newcombe in the World Championship of Tennis tournament in Houston last week. Riessen, who upset Newcombe in Saturday's semifinal round, won $15,000.

Under Houk the team won three more pennants in a row, but after the 1963 season Hamey retired, Houk became the general manager and Berra was named field manager.

In August of 1964, both Topping and Webb sold 80 per cent of their share of the Yankees to CBS for $11.2 million, with each man retaining 10 per cent. Topping stayed on as president of the club.

The Yankees won their last pennant in 1964 but lost the World Series to the St. Louis Cardinals in seven games.

Rod Curl's Dream Was Worth $500 Gs

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — When it comes to finding people who have their fondest wishes materialize, a person needs go no farther than Rodney Dean Curl, a short, chunky Wintu Indian who is now one of the hottest things going on the professional golf tour.

Curl, 31, emerged as No. 1 Sunday from the best field the PGA could muster for its first designated tournament and in so doing held off the challenge of the man who makes most pros quake — Jack Nicklaus.

The 5-foot-5 Curl edged Nicklaus by a stroke to win the Colonial National Tournament and the $50,000 that went with it, thus bringing to life a dream he had had the night before.

Nicklaus was forced to roll in a 12-foot birdie putt on the final hole just to break a tie with Chuck Courtney for second place. Nicklaus, with a final round 68 and a 72-hole total of three-under-par 277, won $28,500, while Courtney — who began the day two shots in front of the field — captured third place money of $17,750 with a 78 total.

The only other golfer to finish under par for the tournament was Julius Boros, 54, a two-time champion over the tough course, who closed with a 68 for a 279 score. He pocketed $11,750.

Lee Trevino, who came within two shots of the lead after running afoul of the final holes, shot an even-par 280 and won $10,250 in this second richest tournament played in 1974.

"I dreamed I would beat Nicklaus by a stroke," said Curl, who fired a two-under 68 Sunday to come from two strokes off the lead and finish with a four-under 276 over the exacting Colonial Country Club course.

"To beat the best players in the world on one of the best golf courses — well — it's a happy feeling," he said. "My wishes this year were to win $100,000 and to win a golf tournament. And I've done both of those. And I wanted to qualify for the Masters, too. I've done that."

The $50,000 Curl won boosted him into fourth spot in the money winners this year with more than $104,000. He has finished in the top 10 six times and has two second-place finishes as well as his win Sunday.

Curl said he had never been involved particularly with Indian causes, leaving that instead to his mother who he said was very active in the betterment of his Wintu tribe.

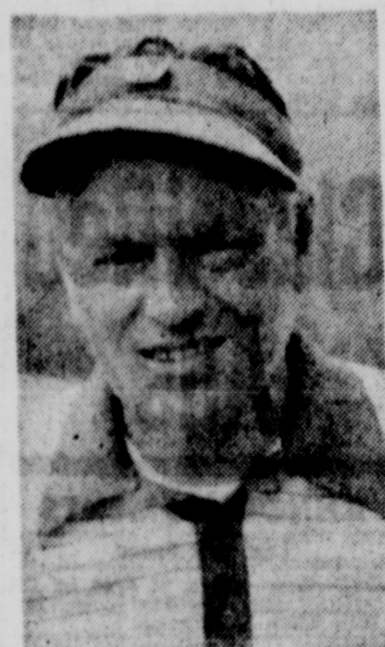

"Now that I've got some money," he said, "I am going to see that my mother gets some to help the right Indian causes."

DOUBLE REWARD — Rod Curl gets a kiss from his girl friend Cindy Genovesi, 22, and a trophy after winning the Colonial National Golf Tournament with 4-under-par 276 Sunday at Fort Worth, Texas. First prize was worth $50,000 in the PGA's first designated tournament. (UPI)

Walker Valley finished second with a score of 223/250. New Paltz was third with 218 and Saugerties Fish and Game Club fourth at 202.

Three gunners broke 25 straight to share first place in the individual competition with Wawarsing — Tom Grossi of Walker Valley and Ray Markie of Art Smith of Wawarsing.

Others who trailed in order were: Eugene Smith, Wawarsing (25); 947; Fred Faerber, Ridge Runners 930; Guy Goldsmith, Wawarsing 930; Bob Schmiedake, Lake Katrine 920; Bob Sperl, Saugerties 912; Art Lapp, New Paltz 900; Jim Martin, Wawarsing 900.

Lake Katrine Rod and Gun Club hosts the county circuit on Sunday, June 9.

Cornell Team Up To Semis

ITHACA, N.Y. (UPI) — Cornell's fourth-ranked lacrosse team has advanced to the semifinals of the NCAA championship by downing fifth-ranked University of Virginia 15-8.

Cornell meets Maryland next Saturday in the semi-final contest.

The Big Red never trailed Virginia with four scores and Saturday against Virginia and were paced in scoring by Mike French with six goals. It gave him a total of 90 points for the year. Jim Trenz had four goals and two assists for Cornell, giving him 86 points. Both are among the nation's leading scorers.

Barry Robertson was high for Virginia with four scores and an assist.

Little Current's Win Typical of '74 Races

By GORDON BEARD
AP Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — Little Current scored a smashing seven-length upset victory in the 99th running of the Preakness Stakes, a race typical of the entire season for 1974's crop of 3-year-old horses.

Before the chestnut colt crossed the finish line Saturday in 1:54 3/5, the third fastest time in Preakness history, Destroyer, Silver Florin, Jolly Jobu and Cannonade had held the lead in Pimlico's 1 1/2-mile classic.

Cannonade, the Kentucky Derby winner who was seeking to repeat Secretariat's 1973 feat as a Triple Crown champion, was in front momentarily as the 13 horses entered the stretch.

But Little Current, a 13-1 choice ridden by Miguel Rivera, bolted through a hole along the rail and drew steadily away down the stretch. Neapolitan Way, another longshot at 24-1, overtook Cannonade and finished second.

Darby Dan Farm, owned by John W. Galbreath, received $156,500 of the record Preakness purse of $209,000, boosting Little Current's career earnings to $207,192.

It was only the second victory in eight stake races this year for the horse. He won the Everglades at Hialeah on March 20, then finished out of the money in the Flamingo, Blue Grass and Kentucky Derby.

The battle to determine the top 3-year-old probably will remain scrambled into the fall. And, the continuing inconsistency could entice a few owners to enter their horses in the Belmont Stakes, the last of the Triple Crown series on June 8.

Little Current, who was fifth in the Derby, and Cannonade are certain entries for the 1 1/2-mile Belmont. Neapolitan Way will be made a supplementary entry, provided there are no after-effects from the cut suffered Saturday on his left hind leg.

Other probable Belmont starters include Hudson County, D.C., the Ambassador, who finished eighth in the Preakness, and All Game, No. 12 in the Preakness and the only horse to finish ahead of Buck's Bid by.

Another probable is Judger. Cannonade's stablemate, who finished eighth in the Derby as the beaten favorite.

JoAnne Loses And Wins Big

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — JoAnne Carner's goals are to keep losing weight until she can wear a size 12 dress — and win lots more golf tournaments.

The robust strawberry blonde feels the extra stamina gained from shedding more than 20 pounds this year was a major factor Sunday in her first tournament victory in three years.

Orlando Mayor Elated With WFL Entry

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — "In the words of Hollywood, this is stupendous, colossal and fantastic," Orlando Mayor Carl Langford said upon learning his city has gained a World Football League franchise.

Yet with no name, no name players and less than two months until the first game, the team's biggest job may be attracting fans.

Already, sources say team owners are considering plans to reach fans in the hometowns of other teams beyond the Orlando area; travel agents are offering games in a package deal with a trip to nearby Walt Disney World.

"I think it's an awful lot of teams for one area," said University of Florida Coach Doug Dickey, whose Gators play at Gainesville, 120 miles away.

The Orlando team will compete for pro sports fans with the WFL Jacksonville Sharks, the National Football League's Miami Dolphins and another NFL franchise due in Tampa in 1976.

It also will compete for college fans with loyalties to Florida, Bethune-Cookman 50 miles away in Daytona Beach, the University of Tampa 90 miles away, the more distant Florida State University and Florida A&M teams in Tallahassee and the University of Miami.

The team's history is littered with location problems. Originally planned for Washington, D.C., the Ambassadors became the Virginia Ambassadors of Norfolk, Va. after being denied use of Kennedy Stadium.

The Orlando owners, headed by former Southern California grid star Rommie Loudd, moved the team to Florida after apparently refusing to invest in the salvaging of an out-of-state team.

Mrs. Carner beat on-charging Sandra Spuzich by shooting a bogey on the first extra hole of a sudden-death playoff to claim the $5,000 first prize in the LPGA Bluegrass Invitational at Hunting Creek Country Club.

Miss Spuzich had a disastrous double bogey after the two players had tied at four-under-par 215 through 54 holes of regulation play.

"Before I lost this weight, I used to get pretty tired toward the end of an 18-hole round and it affected my play," Mrs. Carner said. "I had to play 21 holes today and it got awfully muggy."

"Some of the girls skip this tourney because they say this is an exhausting course. But personally, I like Hunting Creek because it favors the long hitter and because it offers a variety of holes. It was right here three years ago when I won my last tourney."

In addition to the playoff hole, Mrs. Carner also had to play two holes from the second round on Sunday because a thunderstorm Saturday had prevented the last part of the field from completing the round.

She was tied with Kathy Whitworth at the end of the second round but Miss Whitworth faded in the final round and wound up tied with three others for fifth at even-par 219.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

LOVE: (Q) I go out with Tim and also with Kenny. I like both of them, they both tell me they love me and I tell both of them I love them. I talk to my girl friend about them. She says I shouldn't do this. She says I can love only one boy at a time. What do you think? I don't want to hurt anybody's feelings. We are all '44—Reprimanded in Connecticut. (A) I think you are misusing the word "love." I don't think you really love either Kenny or Tim, and probably neither of them really loves you. I also think you are making a mistake talking to your girl friend about what goes on between your boy friends and you. Keep going with Tim and Kenny, but don't throw the word "love" around so freely. NICKNAME: (Q) I have an awful nickname. I hate it. What can I do about it?—George in Georgia. (A) The right nickname can be valuable to a boy or girl. It can help a person make friends. It can give a person identity, make a person memorable. But an unliked or repulsive nickname is very hard to live with. You don't have to live with yours. Two years ago a girl in Connecticut wrote to Teen Forum to tell her sister got rid of her nickname. She refused to answer to it. You can do the same. If someone called you Bill when your name is George, you would not answer him. Do the same with your nickname. When someone uses it, do "I answer." If someone calls you George, do answer. It will take a while, but your friends will catch on and drop the nickname. (Write to Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 2404, Houston, Texas 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received Jean Adams cannot send personal answers.)

Oswald: "It was tough luck but an expert would have given himself an extra chance and made the hand. He would have led a trump to his ace just as South had done, but then he would play out his last diamond. West would not have been able to ruff and a low heart would have been discarded from dummy. After that start South would cash his ace of hearts and ruff his last two hearts in dummy."

Jim: "The extra chance was that West had started with just two trumps. If West held a third trump, he would ruff; dummy would overruff and South could then try the heart finesse. He would still be down one because there had been no way to make the contract."

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Oswald: "Bad players tend to give themselves no chance to bring home a doubtful contract. Fair players usually find a way that may succeed, while really good players give themselves every chance."

Jim: "South was a fair player. He watched his opponents start with three rounds of diamonds. West ruffed the third lead and shifted to a club. South led a trump to his ace and a second trump back to dummy's heart. Then he tried the heart finesse. If it had worked he would have been able to ruff his last heart in dummy, but it failed and he was down one."

Congress, Court and Nader Pressing Inquiries on Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee and a federal court get down to specifics this week in trying to interpret whether President Nixon meant to authorize payment of "hush money" to Watergate defendants and the burglary of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

In addition, Nixon's role in an increase in milk price supports, allegedly in exchange for hefty campaign contributions, comes up again in a new complaint filed by a lawyer for consumer advocate Ralph Nader.

The impeachment panel Tuesday will listen to the tape recording of the crucial March 21, 1973, conversation between Nixon and John W. Dean III, his former counsel and now chief accuser.

It was at that meeting, according to edited White

Georgia Governor on Watergate

A Temporary Embarrassment

By WADE BURKHART

Georgia Governor Jimmy Carter called for Americans to "elevate our sights . . . to a higher plateau of citizenship" in a speech Saturday night at the annual dinner of the Ulster County Democratic Committee at the Granit Hotel in Accord.

Watergate scandal.

Carter's speech got an enthusiastic response from the more than 300 at the dinner, and Harold Brown Jr. called it "the best Democratic speech I've heard in years."

As an example of sound business management, Carter cited his own state government in of them "often have the lowest Georgia. He said that by using "zero base budgeting," starting each year's budget at zero rather than building on previous budgets, his state was saving "more than $60 million a year," and that though services had improved next year's budget would be $10 million less than this year's.

On the delivery of services, Carter said those most in need could create a situation where a housewife can't afford to buy milk, and a farmer can't afford to produce milk, both at the same time.

He said those most in need were developing a greater awareness of what government should be and should do, and this benefits the Democrats.

He noted that the oil companies hadn't suffered. The dinner was held in honor of the county's past Democratic chairmen and vice-chairmen, and their service was recognized by plaques presented by Brown.

A host of office holders and office seekers, including all four seekers of the Democratic nod in the 27th Congressional District, were in attendance.
